

Dreamkeepers — Missing Art

Generated 2026-09-05. Full audit of every art system in the game (Dreamkeepers roster, Bestiary monsters/bosses, equipment, Arena Tower).

Result: everything has real art except one thing. All 32 playable Dreamkeepers (incl. Igo & Ames), all 90 regular Bestiary monsters, and all 24 equipment items already have real portrait art in Assets.xcassets — nothing missing there. The Arena Tower's own gap turned out to be a code bug, not missing art: its rival was labeled with a flavor team name (e.g. "Team Nachtklinge") that never matched any image, so it always showed the icon-badge fallback even though the Dreamkeeper it's based on already has real art. That's fixed directly in code this session — no image needed, Arena now shows real portraits.

The one real gap: 20 world-boss portraits. The campaign has 30 worlds, but only the first 10 bosses (worlds 1–10) have real art. Worlds 11–30 are "second/third dreamings" of the same 10 bosses under new names (e.g. "The Unraveling" → "The Unraveling, Awakened" → "The Unraveling, Eternal") — and since art is looked up by exact name, these 20 renamed bosses fall back to the icon badge in battle and the Bestiary.

How to use this list: generate each image with any AI image tool (prompt is under 480 characters), save it as a PNG, and send the 20 files back — I'll wire them into Assets.xcassets myself (same imageset + Contents.json process used for the existing art). The "Target filename" column is the exact imageset name the code looks up (spaces removed, punctuation kept) — matching it exactly isn't required from you, just tell me which boss each image is for.
